

---

Subject: Re: "life in prizon"

Posted by cheesesoda on Sat, 30 Sep 2006 02:56:47 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

puddle_splasher wrote on Fri, 22 September 2006 06:06[PAPirate wrote on Mon, 21 August 2006 19:57]

Huntley is safer in Jail, in solitary confinement, if that sick bastard ever gets released someone will kill him pretty damn quick and get public blessing for it as well.

*cough* and what about the 2 kids that killed Jamie Bulger aged 2. They smashed his head in with bricks and left him to die on the railway.

Those 2 were aged around 10 years old. Thats 2 more that wont make it onto the streets of Britain.

Perhaps in "The Olden Days" people would only be expected to last around 15 years in prison before they died. Thereafter the British Penal System maintained this figure.

Alternatively, it may be contributed to the fact that you are now living your "life in prison" as opposed to at liberty.

They were released in 2001...

---