The option your probably looking for would be "traction multiplier" (1-5) although you would have to have level edit open to adjust that. That will give steering alot better traction, then for speed change Aero drag to 0.000 and like max engine torque up to a decent number like 30,000. That alone should make a buggy/hummer go pretty fast and keep control.

Just fiddle with the settings tabs for vehicles in level edit and you should be able to get something you like.
