Ehhh, pulled back into the forums from an issue of the past... I voted no, only because 1. His contributions helped me as a map maker and 2. I have thoroughly learned that if you can't recognize the person who is insulting you out there in the street, its an empty comment not worth getting fumed over, even if it was basically just insults.

See you ingame where anything here really matters.

*and if that insulting person by chance hacks your comp, etc., then its the right time...
