I'd hope that any aircraft with visual cloaking would also have radar stealth as well.

Supposedly they're working on individual suits for infantry. The gist of it is that they'll have tiny, tiny camera-type things woven into the clothing. It'll take what it sees on one side of the wearer and project it to the other side. So it won't be invisibility per se, but it'll be more like the Predator's cloak.
