Two major points I would like to make:

(1) The Renegade community is still alive because of the COMMUNITY. The players, the modders, the programmers, etc. The resolve of the developers is more than the resolve of the people who get bored with the game - thus keeping fresh material and interest. The resolve of the anticheat developers is greater than that of the cheaters - thus anticheats are being developed each time a new cheat is discovered. I think the end result here is predictable ... as long as the community has this resolve to keep the game alive it will stay alive. A game is only as fun as the community makes it and this community has proven they love Renegade.

(2) BHS is dedicated to CnC as are a lot of other people. They've done a lot of great work and continue to do what they can to help. But they're not game developers. You need the consolidated efforts of the community to produce quality "mods" (Ren2). ^
