Wow just got done reading through all the pages of this thread. Never seen a thread jump so much and end with something so far off the original topic, but then again I'm not on these forums that much.

Lets see started with a terrorist putting down U.S. troops with pictures, to taking away from someone their commitment to fighting for their country all because they can't spell to well or you don't like our ribbons, to now talking about getting high.

Wonder what the next spin will be. Maybe me since I support our troops, but I made sure I checked my spelling before posting. Grammar on the other hand
