
Subject: Re: Religious Zealot forces airport take down Christmas Trees

Posted by GoArmy44 on Mon, 11 Dec 2006 05:51:56 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

puddle_splasher wrote on Sun, 10 December 2006 05:41f100d3d wrote on Sat, 09 December 2006 23:49People will do anything for attention.

Sidenote: To the best of my knowledge, "trees" (Christmas trees) have absolutely no religious value whatsoever. So what was the argument? To me the trees seem like a seasonal tradition - not a religious celebration.

For fucksake take a reality check??

What is Christmas all about? Does Christianity mean something, anything to you, anything at all?

But then again when you make the above statement you must be the seasonal half-wit, but thats an insult to the half-wit.

Google Christmas tree + tradition. See what it shows.

I see you are still up to your "Google this and that" strategy...anyway dude he was just stating his opinion, no need to call him a "seasonal half-wit" because you disagree. Christmas trees have as much to do with Christmas as does the Easter bunny with Easter. Yes they are part of the tradition but the religious value is somewhat unimportant. You can burn the trees, throw away the expensive presents, and turn off the pretty lights but that still does not stop the true meaning of why some still celebrate Christmas: the birth of Jesus Christ. In my opinion the airport should have left the trees up there but it also made me wonder, how many of those trees actually had Christian symbols on them?
