If other people in this community feel I should, then I'll take their advice and continue to argue with you. Otherwise, I think I've proven myself quite well, kid.

All you proved was that blacks commit more crimes. You proved no correlation between the race and crime. Like I said, you only looked at one variable. Environment effects the outcome of people GREATLY. If you take a black person from a rich family and a black person from a poor family, they're not each as likely to commit a crime. It's not genetics, it's environment.

If the black person comes from a rich family, then their parents were driven, educated, and moral enough to pull their heritage out of a rut and bring their children up properly so that they are less likely to comit the crimes. You can argue that poverty causes crime but when was the last time you saw someone murder someone to feed their family? Or mug someone so they could pay the rent? Crimes (mostly violent crime) are almost always comitted for selfish reasons. "Guns don't kill people. People kill people."
