btw RGH: the rgh gui is only to set the options a bit more comfortable than editing the .ini file by hand. and its to inject the hook into the renegade/renguard process.

so the main rgh part isnt a process or something. you can safely close the rgh gui after renegade/renguard is launched. rgh is then a part of the renegade/renguard process it was injected into.

so you wont notice it in the taskman anyways.

just in case you are interested.
