The kids rule the forum!!

let them be.

As our Parents said to us "When you grow up, you will see what I meant".

In 20 years time I hope I dont have to say "My Sons died in the war against Iraq" to kill one mad-man.

Especially when "WE" should have done it "Then"!!

BUT!! Do I want them to see,"the bastard that ordered thousands killed", die with a noose around his neck?"

No!!! he should have been shot first time around.

I see the look on the U.S.M.C. soldier as he says "We should have have killed him the first time"

To know that his Son and friends died and suffered for their countries virtues is saddening, yet you make a joke of the (war, battle, fued, invasion) call it what you want, when many died for one persons death. Yet you still want to see his death video.

I believe another video has just been released as regards "him" lyeing on the floor, after he croaked it.

How much is enough, before you call yourself a truly, sick, sad, ghoul?

Whats next watching him being buried??? Think about this, the next time you have to bury "anyone".

My words will haunt you. You will see it and remember what you associate death with!!

Death = let us laugh!!! I believe not, but then again, as the 2nd last person of my mother/fathers family, I am nearer to to death than most of you are.
