I'd like to point out that my reponse was the only "official" response, and I'd like to think that I attempted to handle the situation professionally. If you have had problems with RG in the past and were handled badly, I'd like to know. But, seeing as how you took great lengths to hide your identity (posting from a proxy, not using an email address or password hash that matches any other accounts), I don't expect you to come forward
