I once got stoned and crunched through a page of fractions in maths in half the time it would have taken me normally.

And weed does impair judgement, but not in a reckless sense. It'll make you more nervous about certain things, make you think over a choice before you make it. Think twice about who might be on the phone.

1) Could she have a so called "Photo-graphic mind" or a higher level of intellegence? This would account scientifically for the higher marks.

2) You do not state if your crunching was correct?

3) Nervous! More like paranoia and that leads to a lot of nasty schnitzel.
