
Subject: Re: Marijuana

Posted by ron paul on Thu, 18 Jan 2007 20:06:58 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

puddle_splasher wrote on Thu, 18 January 2007 05:27tzar mind wrote on Wed, 17 January 2007 18:19In my higher (AP by American standards I think) English class there is a girl who smokes weed before she studies (she studies for 3 hours a night). She gets full marks for most of her work as well.

I once got stoned and crunched through a page of fractions in maths in half the time it would have taken me normally.

And weed does impair judgement, but not in a reckless sense. It'll make you more nervous about certain things, make you think over a choice before you make it. Think twice about who might be on the phone.

1) Could she have a so called "Photo-graphic mind" or a higher level of intelligence? This would account scientifically for the higher marks.

2) You do not state if your crunching was correct?

3)Nervous! More like paranoia and that leads to a lot of nasty schnitzel.

1) I think it's something to do with her studying for 3 hours a night. She just uses Tetrahydrocannabinol for relaxing herself and allow increased concentrate on her studying.

2) They were all correct.

3) It can make you paranoid as well, but that's controllable. I meant nervous in the context of "I'm too nervous to drive to the shop incase I crash the car in my current altered state of reality and perception"

Also the paranoia shouldn't have hugely negative effects other than said person feeling uncomfortable for the duration of the high.

And on another note, I don't really like most of this stupid stoner culture that most teenagers on the internet are part of. This includes people who think they are part of the Rastafari movement.
