I'll believe that the world is continuing to warm up in 30 years if it's still an 'issue'. Until then, I won't believe it. I see too much evidence of the earth shifting it's climate from cold to warm. This is nothing new. It's even been documented as far back as Mesopotamia.

However, that doesn't mean I won't support new and better alternatives to fossil fuels and lower emissions because pollution is a serious issue as is evident in California.
