Wow, I may be reading your inflections wrong, but you seem a bit hostile towards someone who is trying to help you?

As an RG administrator, I see notices every time you launch renguard that it is auto-updating because the CRC has changed. This can only mean two things:

A. You are trying to hack RenGuard, and are modifying game.exe yourself
B. Your PC has a virus, which is infecting game.exe, most likely along with all your other system files.

Obviously, I assume the problem is B, which is why I sent you the message on the RG network to let you know that your PC may be infected.

You managed to come to these forums and make an account and post your message, so you are surely intelligent enough to understand that what is happening to your game.exe shows every indication that you are infected with a virus, and I am only trying to make you aware so that you can take whatever steps you deem necessary, including not being bothered nonetheless. Personally I'd rather not have a PC full of viruses and spyware, but I guess someone has to keep the spammers and script kiddies in business.
