... But with the release of C&C3 and the fact that EA has milked the last amount of money out of the old games, if enough people got behind the idea and people with ties to EA got involved do you think we could get them to give the game to us and make it freeware. Perhaps tying in some C&C3 advertising or something claiming that it might help boost sales.

About as likely as seeing a rocking horse shit I know but just an idea.
