Casualty count finalized: 8 deaths in the school, one in the city.

Better than what we first heard.

Omigod, someone on the news actually said in a mock concerning voice, "And, *sniff*, our hearts go out to those poor citizens of Enterprise Oklahoma."

They also called this a "football town." Sure, there are Auburn/Alabama rivalry fans here, but no one really plays it that much here. This city's an industrial hub; most construction materials, electronics, machinery, etc. in the tri-county area come from here. I guess Ft Rucker's to blame for that.

Anyway, I'm done. *goes to update 'whereabouts' list*
