IMO, no wrong thing was done. Even if "innocent" people were spied on, it is always better to be vigilant and watchful.

Here, the police did what we normally don't think should be done by cops. But in this day and age it is an absolute must. As inferred from the article, 9/11 proved that every legal law enforcement branch should be vigilant...not just agencies like the FBI, CIA, and NSA. So the NYPD is setting the standard in becoming more efficient and enforcing homeland security.

The NYPD took the time and money to BLEND in with ordinary folks and get on the inside. It is necessary to investigate each and every one of the so-called "perceived" threats. You may never know...

This is slightly off topic but what is absolutely illegal is what the CIA did with it's secret prisons and illegal flights in Europe. With no background information and on MERE suspicion, they arrested quite a few innocent men and flew them to Syria/Egypt to be tortured.

Now that is illegal and scumwork...but this is not. So people who are complaining about this should realize that we are living in dangerous times and sacrifices are necessary.
