Um, I haven't played in two months.

trooprm02 wrote on Wed, 02 May 2007 17:06You YOURSELF have said that the clan "TRPM" listed on cw.cc was inactive, have you changed your mind and started denying what you have/have not already said?

I think you're getting pretty desperate here. What I said was a rebuttal to your completely stupid assertion that I disallowed skins because you enlightened me to the "error of my ways". The plain fact is

- I wanted to disallow them for some time

- while I would take the general clanwars.cc community's input on decisions like that, I would hardly give yours too much consideration if you aren't an active player. You need to understand what I mean by "active", because it isn't what you're thinking about. It means having been around for a while league-wise, being known, actually playing clanwars on a somewhat regular basis, and oh yeah, actually being able to put two and two together to make something other than five.

You don't qualify as any of the above. That's not really a flame, just another rebuttal. My points still stand - you're still remarkably unsportsmanlike, you've still been proven wrong about the Pirate game over and over and over again, and you're still apparently very desperate to make yourself feel like you've somehow won this argument, no matter how futile it seems to everybody other than yourself.
