Simple fact is, 1 game doesn't make a good player or clan. Compete competitively for a whole month, against the best clans there is to play, then you are in a position to comment on beating someone.

Thing is, I doubt troopr and his crack squad will ever do that.

Pretty much every thread he's ever posted in the forum about his clanwar experiences is laughable. He has no real experience of playing a sustained period against good clans, he just picks and chooses his games, brags about winning, and cries and cooks up some weird and wonderful story about why he lost, or why the game never should have counted.

If troopr really wants to be taken seriously, he needs to get himself, and his buddies, into the whole clanwar scene.

Yet again though, knowing he will get found out, he will use many and varied strings of bollocks about how the league is corrupt or poorly run in order to avoid playing there, and avoid losing face, after losing 95% of all the games he plays against the decent clans.
