The problem was actually that regedit didnt save my changes for some wierd reason. I created the key and set it to 1, but when I loaded regedit up again to double check a few mins after I posted that the new key had gone and about 20 new ones had appeared in its place... (I know it was the same location as regedit opens in the last location you were looking at)

Probably some funky vista crap going on there, anyway it works now
