Because of the a00 names, because they was at the top.

FanMaps used to have three to four full servers, when I first joined them as a clan member and they was a the top.

Now, we are the bottom (called MP now), we have fewer players, we still have a strong Renegade community who play in our servers, but the days of a all our servers being full are long gone.

If we had a higher listing, that would soon change.

Also, I have noticed, everytime i login, the listings aint in a00 order now?, its like mixed up, is that just me or anyone else affected?

Back in the days (2003-2004), servers were way more expensive and there were way more players. When you got a server up, you got traffic basically. The fact n00bstories, UN, fanmaps, The KOSs2, ... got strong has nothing to do with a000 back then but by the fact they put a lot of effort in their server(s) and people liked them. The fact n00bstories has always been closely linked to these forums in the person of Crimson has ofcourse helped them out as well.

And yes: it's bullshit to say that e.g. n00bstories (best known example) would still get as many players as they do now if they were at the bottom of the list, but there would certainly be a loyal amount of players still playing there.

About the ordering: you proly run resurrection, which allows you to change the WOL listing.
