Ok, no, that didn't fix the problem, but when I was about to reply, I shut down some programs in my taskbar, and tried to load it up again.. and BOOM it worked.

The programs I Shut down were:
DAP (Download accelerator plus)
Yod'm 3D Desktop
Visual Tool Tip

RenX/Gmax used to work with Yod'm, so I don't think that was the problem. Visual Tool Tip just gives images of windows when they are minimized in task bar and I hover over them. DAP simply finds multiple hosts for a single file, and spreads downloading out among them, thus increasing download time exponentially.

VisTT and DAP are new programs that I forgot I installed yesterday. I will go restart them and see which ones caused the problem.

EDIT:

Alright, turns out that DAP was the culprit.
*goes to turn off 'start on windows startup'*

Thanks for your help anyway.
