

---

Subject: LOL @ Angry Fanboys
Posted by cheesesoda on Fri, 07 Sep 2007 20:57:05 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

So, Apple slashed the price of the iPhone 8GB from $600 to $400. This is normally a celebrated thing, right? Not when it involves Apple snobs!

It seems that some egotistical people who bought the iPhone before waiting for a price cut are up in arms at the $200 discounted price. Only an Apple lover could be this stupid and egotistical to get mad because they HAD TO HAVE the iPhone. People really need to get over themselves.

I understand the frustration of buying something and see the price be cut shortly after. It's completely understandable because you basically wasted your money. However, the anger should be directed at your impatient self, not at the manufacturer. They paid the price for a gadget they wanted that badly. That's the price you pay for being over-eager.

This is just more of this piss poor attitude of not taking the blame for your stupid move. Nope! Let's all blame the "EVIL CORPORATION" on this one. That makes much more sense. Apple OBVIOUSLY forced people to buy their product.

---