Sure, you just want your two-cents put in to make you look like you're on the moral high-ground here, when most people don't know you and don't care if you left.

Quote:I was in the community awhile before Crimson was, regardless of the fact that I don't post much anymore.

I forgot about you... Probably for the best, considering people who just up-and-leave, because they can't stand the heat, aren't worth my time.

threads such as this one.

The only time you've found to post is when a thread like this is made, and nothing else. Funny that it would have to concern me before you'd write anything.

Quote:You would think a community would have been able to right itself of such conflict by now, but apparently not. Oh well, this is all the reason I left in the first place, I've got much better things to do.

By all means, go ahead and do them... While doing them, ask yourself, "Does anyone care if I leave?" I doubt anyone cares about someone who expects problems to be solved for him, without making any attempts at all.

Quote:And don't go screaming "HYPOCRISY!" I know I'm involving myself in it now, but it's only the second flame thread I've posted in since I left, and I'm multitasking.

You're still a hypocrite, regardless of how you attempt to rationalize your hypocrisy.
