
Subject: Re: Man returns gun ammo to walmart at 1300 feet per second
Posted by AoBfrost on Thu, 13 Sep 2007 13:22:51 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

cheesesoda wrote on Thu, 13 September 2007 09:16 Now I know you people are idiots. Even Jackie Mason thinks you're all "fuckin' morons". I'm quite inclined to agree.

It boggles the mind to think that people would care more about their attackers than themselves. I don't care much for possessions, but I'm not about to give up what I have to some criminal. If I can defend myself, I will, and if it's lethal force, so be it. A dead man can't rob me or anybody else, can he?

Even if you don't care about yourself, think about what happens if you let that person go? If they rob someone once, they're bound to do it again to someone else. What if, that time, the criminal decides to HARM that other victim? It's certainly happened. Criminals generally aren't one-time criminals.

If you don't want to have a gun for fear of someone you love being hurt, then don't own one. However, don't prevent me from owning one even by regulating it. If my child or friend gets killed by my gun, then let that blood be on MY hands. Allow me to take responsibility for MY actions. I don't want your "protection" from myself.

Yes, Cheese is right, if they do it once, why not say they will do it again? what will stop them? no one, they will rob and hurt others as long as they can get what they want, that's why it should be that if you can defend yourself, then do so, call 911 if you don't want to "fight" the guy, then just do it so cops will come at least.....