MY right-wing side comes out more often because I bitch about Socialism nearly 24/7.

Remember though, I'm Canadian. Canadian conservatism (small-c) is generally more to the center than American conservatism. Not too long ago, the mainstream conservative party was named the "Progressive Conservative" party.

That doesn't make one bit of difference, though. We both took the same test that's for American politics. My point is that while you say your right-wing side comes out more because you talk finances, you're pretty much in the middle. I understand both conservative parties have different ideas, but generally both are pro-Capitalism.
