Supposedly, the white kid had made fun of one of the attackers who had allegedly been beaten up by another white kid not long before.

This all stemmed from the hanging of the nooses from the "white tree" and previous black/white fights at and outside the school, not to mention part of one building getting burned down.

I won't begin to go into how your animal analogy doesn't work, but that's really irrelevant here.

Personally, I think attempted murder is too much to charge them with. The son of my college's athletic director and a friend fucked up another guy much worse than this kid and only got charged with aggravated assault with serious bodily injury.
