
Subject: Re: Another comp thread =P

Posted by AoBfrost on Wed, 03 Oct 2007 13:21:45 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Do this it's easier.

HP and compaq for years have been rated #1 or #2 in buy a already made PC, I would buy one for like 800 dollars since you want a good CPU, go to best buy or office depot weekly and look, they have PC's that come with 20inch high def wide screen monitors which are clearer and better than most lcd tv's out there.

I saw last week for 850$

3gig ddr2 ram
500gb harddrive
20inch lcd nvidia 8600 256mb graphics (new card supporting Dx10)
windows vista ultimate amd athlon x2 5200+

good price for a PC which includes a lcd, without the LCD it was like 600 dollars.

AMD isnt crappy, but does use more power for the same workload a intel would do, but heck it doesnt matter, because it's cheaper to buy, a intel PC at office depot with similar specs will cost over 1 thousand.
