Err. Pardon? Since when could no group of individuals, desiring to have a talk about the state of politics in this country not have a serious discussion. The medium is different, the action is the same. We're still communicating. Please take your irrelevant posts elsewhere, or you may as well say "I am MI6's most decorated Peruvian llama" in response to everything everyone says to you in real life. That's how relevant you're being.

In otherwords, just go away (or post something helpful, nothing related to decorated Peruvian llamas though). Here comes the ignore button.
