

---

Subject: Re: Religious - God

Posted by cheesesoda on Fri, 05 Oct 2007 03:13:05 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Whether or not a higher being exists can neither be proven nor disproven.

It's silly to think that you have an absolute answer to that question. Just because it's your truth doesn't mean it's everyone's truth.

As far as my beliefs, I feel that the odds we just existed are too small to convince me that we just happened by accident. I feel that a being set in motion the Big Bang. I'm not sure if it's the Christian god or not. I was brought up as a Christian, but after a couple years out of a Christian education, I started to have more of an open mind about the possibility that the Bible is just a story book. However, people that claim that it's ONLY a story book are just as ludicrous as those claiming that it's the ABSOLUTE "Word of God".

What makes me think there's something higher? I've had too many close calls while driving that I can't attribute to anything but coincidence or something higher. However, it's happened so often that I can't believe in it being coincidental. For instance, me not paying close enough attention of those driving around me that I accelerate and end up missing the car passing in front of me by a fraction of a second. This has happened several times.

---