Problem is.

I dont have a Wii?

I played Fox for Gamecube and N64. Old school fox.

but, Later down the road, if I ever get one, This and Twilight Princess are the only games i'll buy for it so far Speaking for Twilight Princess for the wii, your back ward!

No but seriously you are, on the WII they inverted the screen, the left side is actually the right and the right is actually the left. Thats why link is left handed on game cube and right on wii. Also it because really obvious if you have only played game cube version, then get the wii version and you walk around the maps, it takes about to seconds to realize that all the maps are back wards (because of the inverted screen position). Hope you guys can figure out what I mean, or at least explain it simpler. (Nothing like typing things while being rushed).
