Nope. It's 100% legal to use the n word. Freedom of speech.

The only legal trouble you could get in for using the n word, or any offensive term for that matter would be if some physical engagement followed the use, and you were arrested for that. You could be charged on the account of the n word being deemed a "fighting word," which is actually a legal term used for a word that would instigate a physical follow-up to something verbal. Thereby, you would be charged and prosecuted for starting a fight.
