Thats where you are wrong, it is another way to do it, I messed with it a long time ago, if I remember correctly if you modify the purchase terminal values place the building nods. Then make a copy of your current purchase setting preset and rename the old one something else, and the new one what the old one was you can make a second map, place another building controller and then play it both maps can have different vehicles on them even if they are both contained in the same mod package (I did that when I was back on level 2 of Renhalo, so that was quite a while ago, probably slightly more then a year. But I know it works.
