Subject: Re: omg ps3+game+controller for 400? wtf?!
Posted by Ryu on Thu, 15 Nov 2007 03:32:30 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

razorblade001 wrote on Wed, 14 November 2007 20:02Because they concentrate too much on having a Universal Entertainment System rather than a gaming console. They have so much stuff that you don't need on a Video game console that they have anyway. (Hence those images for PS3Grill)

I mean, sure, such a product that gives you so many abilities is a good thing... HOWEVER we are not talking about the product that can give you the most... we are talking about Video Gaming Consoles.

Tell me, why does a video game console need a bluray disk drive? A disk drive that supports disks that are so high above standards that they won't be massively used until 2010 :\

Now, Sony makes a good ~entertainment hub system~ however, when it comes to the gaming portion of it, however it is geared towards that, tends to fall short of the other consoles. The only real reason that when I hear PS3 that makes me think about getting it, is the graphics... but honestly, I don't buy things because of graphics.

Also, the thing you quoted, I said they make the "Worst" gaming consoles. I didn't say they make bad gaming consoles. Worst of the 3, not bad.

Now let me move onto the 360 before you reply to me with "The 360 has media abilities too"

The 360 may have these abilities too, but it makes up for it in it's gaming portion. LIVE is an example of this.

But that's the thing, I bought a PS2 because it could play DVD's, CD's, and games, all in the comfort of my bedroom.

Blueray disks are for people who have High-Def tv's, And want full picture quality.

You get free Internet usage with the PS3, Unlike Microsoft, were they need to rob you of every last penny you have.

I'm not a fanboy here myself, I've been buying Nintendo products for 12+ years now, I've owned a Gameboy, a Snes, a Gamecube, and loved every last second of it, Then again, I've owned a PS1 and a PS2.

Having a universal media product isn't a bad thing, I mean, All that in something so small? I'd like to see anyone else pull that out of their ass, And it has some power.

As for "graphics", What makes "OMFG 1337 GRAFIXX" possible? A nice processor and ram, along side with a good graphics card, I've seen some game dev. interviews, and they're taking full advantage of the power behind the PS3, Advanced (And I mean advanced) AI, Real-time Physics (Pretty much like Crysis', even better if you ask me.) and whatnot, Graphics just come as a extra.

I'm getting sick of people saying "WAHH WAHH SONY ARE GAY WAHH WAHH", Because half of the time, people have no idea what business they do, and what customer they provide a service for.

Now let me move onto UT3, Did you know you can download custom mods for UT3, and play them on your console, as well as your pc?

I believe they're doing this with the Xbox, too, But uhh, Don't you have to pay to download extra content for a game, If you own a Xbox?, As far as I'm concerned, Sony aren't charging for such a service.

I'd love to argue all day about what console is better, But to be honest, The Wii and the PS3 are my choice, PS3 for the media, and a Wii for the old skool' times () and innovation.

I'd buy a Xbox... In 2+ years.. After they manufacture a bunch of them and they are tested so they don't overheat and RROD after playing for 1+ hour, And maybe if the Live usage is free, too.

In the end, it comes down to personal choice.