LOL...You fail then, because that is not in the private IP space.  Here's who is currently using it:

To clarify, private IP space is:
10.0.0.0/8
127.0.0.0/8
172.16.0.0/12
192.168.0.0/16

EDIT: Some may also say that 224.0.0.0 is as well, as it is set aside for multicast and "experimental purposes".

lmfao I read that wrong, I thought it was 192.168 haha. =]
Thanks for pointing that out to me. Sorry about that.
