

---

Subject: Re: Your thoughts on death?

Posted by Caveman on Sat, 24 Nov 2007 14:05:44 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

cheesesoda wrote on Sat, 24 November 2007 01:39Caveman wrote on Fri, 23 November 2007 15:35-NE-Fobby-GEN-It's kind of funny how most of the posters are posting 'definite' responses, as if they are so sure they're right. Which one of you has died and returned to tell us what happened? It'd make you all a lot more rational if you said "I think" or "I believe" rather than giving definite responses.

Theres nothing to be indefinite about. When you die, you die. No two ways about it. I don't see any of my dead family members coming back to life and telling me how cool heaven was... That's awful arrogant to think that there is a definite answer. Absence of evidence is not evidence of absence. Just because they haven't come back doesn't mean that there's no alternate ending besides just perishing.

It may be arrogant but its logical. The purpose of death is to no longer exist. You don't kill a chicken so it can come back to life as a frog. Gang members don't kill other gang members so they can goto heaven/hell or to be become another life form.

Death is apart of life, or am I missing something here?

---