
Subject: Re: Free Needles in Ukraine to Drug Users
Posted by Dover on Tue, 11 Dec 2007 17:23:48 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

cheesesoda wrote on Tue, 11 December 2007 09:02Dover wrote on Tue, 11 December 2007 00:25cheesesoda wrote on Mon, 10 December 2007 20:05I can handle disagreement just fine, but that doesn't mean I am going to sit here and accept the ideology of Equality of Outcome. It's a silly, fantasy ideology that has failed in real life on a large scale. Equality of Opportunity has worked and continues to work, especially for a nation the size of the USA.

I don't know of any examples of equality of opportunity, historical or current. I think most of history has relied on this principle. Most of the people that have made something out of themselves didn't thrive because the government stepped in and handed it to them. They made something out of themselves.

What you just described has nothing to do with equality of opportunity. It just describes opportunity, leaving out the all-important "equality" part.

Look, this is getting nowhere. I'm pretty sure we've beaten out all the discussion we can out of this. You're a money-grubbing capitalist, I'm not. We disagree, and I'm okay with that. Clearly, nothing I say will influence you in the slightest, and you could say the same for me.

Feel free to put the dead horse down any time.
