As in the title, I blame the people over the Internet who swear for no reason other than the heck of it. This is my second year in high school and I have gotten through all my school years swearing only once or twice in public, so its not that hard. I just want older people to be more responsible in their speech

Do you guys think swearing has gone overboard??

Eh, I wouldn't blame the internet on it. I'd say it's more likely they got it from family, especially at that age :/
