Me and someone else have drafted up a legal document that needs a basic checkup for validity and legality, since we're all not lawyers.

It'd definitely better to have someone who has a legal background (due to studies), than someone who knows someone who has background, if you understand what I mean..

Ok, well what exactly is needed? Free legal advice? Both my parents work with various type of lawyers, if you want, I could ask them?

I have their emails from a Careers project way back when.
