

---

Subject: Re: OBAMA for president
Posted by Starbuzz on Fri, 04 Jan 2008 02:53:48 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

R315r4z0r wrote on Thu, 03 January 2008 20:15No, a conspiracy is still a conspiracy no matter what proof you have weather to it existing or not. I think you mean to say a theory is only a theory until proved otherwise.

That's what you have been told and that is the simple reasoning behind which the perpetrators escape quite easily.

BTW, I am not talking about "proof."

I am talking about truth. If a truth emerges that may seem to indicate that a conspiracy may actually have some credibility, then it is no longer a conspiracy; it becomes a theory (with bits of factual evidence). And this in turn should be fully investigated until proven otherwise.

To still maintain that it is a conspiracy (without critically looking into the truth) highlights the degree to which a person lacks individual initiative and critical thinking.

---