

---

Subject: Re: OBAMA for president
Posted by Spoony on Wed, 09 Jan 2008 02:29:35 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

MWright967 wrote on Sun, 06 January 2008 14:28Let me settle this argument:

The US is not ready for a BLACK MUSLIM as their president. We're waring with MUSLIMS right now, and if anyone hasn't already noticed....Blacks aren't exactly the most respected group in America, or on the world scale for that matter. Picking him to be our president would mean 2 things:

1, We'd be total hypocrits. We go over to start a war with muslims, then elect one as our president. Fishy, huh?

1. Barack Obama is not a Muslim. He is a Christian. His father was a Muslim and that probably influenced him as a kid somewhat, but once he was old enough to make his own choices, that's all that should really matter.

2. There is no war against Islam, it's a war against Islamic extremism. Saddam Hussein was not an Islamic extremist.

MWright967 wrote on Sun, 06 January 2008 14:28Obama isn't going to win. He CAN'T win. Don't you understand why he was put in the election? To make it seem like Blacks and Muslims, America's two most hated minorities, are becoming more "equal", not that he would actually WIN. Again, he's not a Muslim. As for being black, he cannot win an election simply because some committee decided they want a black President. What's more, out of the large number of PEOPLE who approve of Obama, I don't think too many of them are doing it simply on the basis that he's black. I like the guy more than any other candidate except Ron Paul, but race was never a consideration for me. For you, it was apparently the ONLY consideration... and you are telling me racism isn't over?

---