

---

Subject: Re: What are you views on this?

Posted by Carrierll on Thu, 10 Jan 2008 19:05:01 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Dover wrote on Thu, 10 January 2008 03:05Blazer wrote on Wed, 09 January 2008 18:59Dover wrote on Wed, 09 January 2008 10:39Blazer wrote on Wed, 09 January 2008 06:50There is no "love" when you are 13. Any boy after a 13 year old girl is interested in one thing...and you know what that is. I'm sure that SHE thinks she is in "love" with him, but I would be that he is either infatuated or just strings her along while telling his buddies about the newest "camslut" he has on the line.

That's not very nice, Blazer. I remember being in love when I was 13. I might have been 14, actually, but who's counting?

I'm sorry that the FACT that teenage boys are horndogs offends you. I too remember being in "love" when I was 13. I also remember wanting to fuck anything that moved, including the object of my desire. Young kids are bursting with hormones and are all but incapable of being "friends".

Also, there is the very real danger of pedophiles who know exactly how to social engineer young kids to come and meet them, and the next day they are a news story.

TBH 13 is WAY too young to be in a relationship anyhow, for the reasons I stated above and more. Yeah lots of girls mature faster than boys, and a 13 year old girl may know what shes doing, but who is she really talking to on the other end? A horndog boy who wants to sweettalk his way into her panties? A 50 year old pedo who wants to take naked pictures of her? Do you really want to chance that with your child?

If it was a neighbor kid IRL that seemed okay it might be different, but theres no way I would trust kids on the internet, as I said you don't even know if its a kid, its just a screenname and who knows who they really are or what their intentions are.

No, I get what you're saying. Don't get me wrong.

All I'm saying is, love is possible at 13. Yes, love, not "love".

I've been just friends, and I mean just friends with several girls (infact, almost exclusively girls for years, boys have just about matured enough to be acceptable company)

- 1) Yes, I'm a boy
- 2) yes, I'm straight

Not everyone is a horndog, or incapable of controlling it, Blazer. I might be 17 now, but when I was 13, I saw my friendships with girls as friendships. Not everyone is like me, either. I see where you're comming from Blazer, but that's not true of everyone.

---