And by bashing our country, if you don't like it, then go back to Bulgaria. You so pissed about what Bush is doing and it doesn't even concern you since you aren't a citizen of the US. The only contry I've heard of that has been attacked by Al Queda aside from us, is the UK. It's not even affecting you over there, so why does Europe hate us. I see about as many people from the UK that don't like us as do, but it seems that everyone on the continent of Europe hates us.

You're getting a bit ahead of yourself here. I don't nessessarily approve of the actions of the US's current administration, but I haven't meantioned bush at all, nor have I "bashed" this country any more than unbiased true history has.

As for it "not affecting us over there", perhaps you're unaware of Bulgaria's participation in the "Axis of the willing", or whatever the BS terminology is? Or about the Bulgarian contrators dying left in right in Iraq from IEDs and such? Or about the six Bulgarian nurses held in Lybia for several years for "War crimes" and to be executed (Supossedly, intentionally infecting babies with AIDS), only recently released and flown home with intervention from the EU?

Americans have a habit of ignoring (Wether intentionally, or just through being ill-informed, I don't know) the rest of the world (Except any country that Fox News mentions, of course. Then everybody is an expert).

And as for going back, I do. Almost every summer. I try to spend around three months of every year back in Bulgaria, but budget constraints usually mean it's more like every-other year, and usually for a lot less than three months.

As for the hating...well, it's easy to hate the ignorant. I don't say you're ignorant to insult or bash anybody, but just look at this thread so far. Starbuzz summed it up nicely with this:

Starbuzz wrote on Tue, 15 January 2008 13:11 This is the main source of the problem. Without a solid foundation in history, proven facts, figures, and statistics, you are in no position whatsoever to get into arguments involving them.

The whole world opinion of the United States has dangerously deteriorated due to this stubborn refusal to learn the past. Even Europe laughs now.
