Instead of IMMIGRATING the Immigrants into the society, they let them build up their own. People come to this state, which means they accept the rules of THIS state. Why do they get their own rules? :/

I completely agree with you.

It's amazingly ridiculous to see immigrants coming to Western countries and then like fucking selfish idiots, setting up their own communities and mimicking the cultures they just so desperately wanted to leave! They segregate themselves all the while greedily enjoying the milk and honey and opportunites the land has given them.

Deep inside they are full of criticism for the country they live in. I know this.

I agree with both of you. In the time I have lived in Arizona, I have gotten a first hand look at illegal immigration, and it's sad that most of your words are dead on.

I believe that people have a right to hold onto their heritage, and they should. BUT this can be done without isolating yourself. Theres no reason you cannot hold onto your culture and beliefs without scorning the place where you currently live.

Here in Arizona, illegal immigration is obviously a big deal. Don't get me wrong, I have NO problem with Mexican people. In fact, I have NO problem with any race of people. I like or dislike persons individually based upon their personality and actions, not their race.

Anyhow I have seen how lots of Mexicans will come here (and other states), and on the one hand they are SO glad to have "escaped" from the apparent shithole that mexico is, and are now in a land of great opportunity...it's like having a new lease on life, you would think they would gladly embrace all america has to offer.

But yet, I mostly see them set up their own communities and trying to recreate mexico here in the US. They have total disregard for US law, and pretty much think of americans as "fat gringos" that they want to take advantage of.

Again, let me state that I do not dislike Mexican people in any way, and I'm not saying that they are all this way. There are plenty of Mexicans who come to the US properly, and legally, and abide by our laws and contribute to society. Sadly though they are not in the majority. Just last week an illegal immigrant ran over and killed a border guard with his Hummer, and then retreated back to Mexico.

When people legally come to a new country and acclimate themselves to their new environment, that's immigration.

When people illegally come to a new country to plunder its resouces, meanwhile full of disdain for its laws, sovereignty, and citizens, while setting up an isolated "camp" of their own people...that is an invasion.

I'd say reward the immigrants who come here legally, and the illegal ones should be treated harshly. We are way too soft on them, which is why they are flooding in like ants after a rain shower. It's sad that we have some laws that are so hardcore, like going to prison for downloading an MP3, yet some guy can climb over the fence from Mexico, steal a US citizens social security number, leech off of resources meant for legal citizens, break the law, etc, and all that happens if he gets caught is "deported", which means maybe 2 days before he climbs the fence and comes right back again.
