this topic is really fucked up.
Firmware - rofl !!

You can't make your internet connection speed faster unless you hack the software your modem is running.
The internet connection speed is something set by your internet provider, not your PC.
All you can do in windows is to set the connection speed of your >local< connection, which doesn't speed up your internet connection in anyway.

and before there are more things getting posted from people that have no clue but want to say something, I close this thread.
If you have something useful to say, tell me and I will unlock this again.

locked