I've tried and tried to find a text editor for my batch-file programming that saves and views Unicode characters, and shows syntax highlighting.
Unfortunately Crimson editor, my first attempt, won't display them. neither will Notepad++. In fact the only free program I've found that displays them is plain old NotePad!

Does anyone know of any¿

Oh and if you are a DOS geek you'll probably know dos only understands asci & ascii encoded batch files, but thats where the type unicode.bat > ascii.bat comes in handy.
