I disagree. I think that people who complain about it are the ones ruining it. If this happens, don't complain about it.. do something about it. The person at fault here is the wife, not the husband.

Is it really hard to pull out the internet cable? Is it really hard to uninstall it when he isn't looking?

No it isn't... but instead she has to go onto live TV and down talk it. Personally, I really hate WoW, but people who aren't gamers see that on TV and generalize it into every video game. If you are controlling some virtual elements in your TV, it is a bad thing.. that is what people get out of it.

If they wanted to make it even slightly more segregated, they could of at least said the type of game and from whom it was made by, but no, instead they just say "Popular video game." Lumping it into every other game out there.

It is this reason that new and better games will never come out in the future because of these people who complain enough and brain wash people with the wrong ideas and in turn they cause the gameing industry to dwindle.
