Very nicely said instead of the usual "got no life."

I agree. One of my friends just likes this game and does not like to do anything else for entertainment and this even cuts into his academic life.

I was a lot like that...would return to dorm from class (instead of going to library and finishing the essay) to play Renegade. But then my laptop crashed (with all those in-game SS, logs, and custom skins) and my Renegade life came to a halt for two months. I am glad for that accident as it stabilized my cravings and now I have some sense of self-control with Renegade.

NOTE: The only other game I play is Incoming and that too only if I feel like flying around in exotic alien craft (rarely).
