lol, if you don't know what you're talking about then just don't lol, if you can make sense of this, than please do.

How many 1v1s have you played against good players, and how many of them have you won?
I haven't played "A lot" but I have played many.
And define what you mean by "good player."

And, from memory, I have only lost like... 1/5th of them... I could be wrong.

I'm telling you, each 1vs1 game I play all I do is avoid my opponent with a strong vehicle, attack his base, plant C4 on a building, use a tank to blow up another building, and possibly Ion if the credit amount is over 1000 at game start.

The only reason why I win so many of them is because I can blow up an empty base pretty quickly if left alone...

I do remember 1 game that I lost, but it wasn't a 1 vs 1, it was a 1 vs 2 (I was the 1). The game started out as a 1vs1, but we "agreed" not to fight until more people came. After about 5 min the agreement was off and we started attacking each other... but being that it was on City Flying, me being on Nod, I couldn't destroy his base as easily as I would liked. (I refuse to use the Flame Tank). Anyway, the game went on, and I was winning, then someone joined on his team. Still the game went on and I still was winning... I even held back duel APC rushes. (These guys sucked something awful). Now about 10 min into the game, my apache got stuck. I said in public chat that it got stuck, and he said he would come to destroy it. At that time my mom told me to go put the garbage out... and by the time I came back, no more than 30 seconds later, I was still in my apache and all but the Hand was destroyed.

I lost that game.

& @ star, please explain how "pistol skills" come into play. If you are playing a 1vs1, at least the kind you guys are describing, you at no point should have to use a pistol.

Like I said, and what Cabal said, a 1vs1 wont prove much in any areas that one might find "skillful." Unless you are playing in a death match or possibly an infantry only map.

If you want to prove skill in this teamwork-based game, the only good way to do that is to go up against a team alone!

1vs2, 1vs3, 1vs4....
or proportion it..

2vs6, 4vs16. (Oh man, I have played hundreds upon hundreds of those 4vs games)
